FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

RESPONDENT: Richard R Morrison IV MUR: 5922

I. INTRODUCTION

This matter was generated by a Commission audit of the Richard Morrison Congressional Committee ("RMCC") pursuant to 2 U S C \(\frac{1}{2} \) 438(b) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended ("the Act") The audit covered the period from September 30, 2003 through December 31, 2004, and the Commission approved the Final Report of the Audit Division on March 7, 2007 1 For the reasons set forth below, the Commission finds reason to believe that Richard R Morrison IV ("Morrison" or "Respondent") violated 2 U S C § 441a(f) by knowingly accepting an excessive contribution on behalf of RMCC aggregate, exceed $2,000" 2 U S C § 441a(a)(1)(A) A contribution is any gift, subscription, loan, 1 advance, or deposit of money or anything of value made by any person for the purpose of 2 3 influencing any election for Federal office 2 USC \(\frac{1}{2} \) 431(8)(A)(1) In addition, the Act prohibits any candidate or political committee from knowingly accepting any contribution in violation of the provisions of section 441s(a) 2 U S C § 441s(f) Any candidate who receives a contribution in 5 б connection with his or her campaign shall be considered as having received such contribution as an agent of his or her authorized committee 2 U S C § 432(e)(2)

Contributions from family members are subject to the limitations provided by the Act. As the Supreme Court stated in Buckley v Valeo, 424 U S 1 (1976) ("Buckley"), the legislative history of the Act provided, "It is the intent of the conferees that members of the immediate family of any candidate shall be subject to the contribution limitations established by this legislation The immediate family member would be permitted merely to make contributions to the candidate in amounts not greater than $1,000 for $2,000 in 20041 for each election involved S Conf Rep No. 93-1237, p 58 (1974), U S Code Cong & Admin News 1974, p 5627" Buckley at 51, n 57 The Court further stated, "Although the risk of improper influence is somewhat diminished in the case of large contributions from immediate family members, we cannot say that the danger is sufficiently reduced to bar Congress from subjecting family members to the same limitations as nonfamily contributors" Id at 53, n 59 See, e.g., MURs 5138 (Ferguson) and 5348 (Condon) (Commission conciliated with candidate, committee and parents for the making and acceptance of excessive contributions)

With certain exceptions, candidates for Federal office may make unlimited campaign expenditures from personal funds 11 CFR § 110 10 For purposes of section 110 10, the definition of "personal funda" includes, inter also, salary and other earned income from bona fide employment, loans, and gifts of a personal nature which had been customarily received prior to 1 candidacy 11 CFR §§ 100 33(a)-(b), 100 52(a) 2

During the audit, RMCC maintained that the funds Morrison loaned to RMCC were his personal funds Initially, RMCC took the position that the funds were a gift to Morrison from his parents and, therefore, constituted his personal funds, see 11 C F R § 110 10, supra However, no specific information was submitted to support that the funds fit in the category of "gifts of a personal nature customarily received prior to candidacy "

The Commission has focused on objective factors in determining whether a putative gift fits into the category of "gifts of a personal nature customarily received prior to candidacy". For example, in Advisory Opinion 1988-7, the Commission responded to an inquiry from an "undeclared candidate" for a House seat in 1988 regarding his contribution of monetary gifts as personal funds to his campaign. The requester had received a gift of $20,000 in each of the three years 1985 through 1987, prior to his candidacy. The requester believed that his parents would give him another gift of $20,000 during 1988. The requester asked whether he could contribute the expected $20,000 towards his campaign as "personal funds" even though he had not received the gift prior to becoming a candidate and filing a Statement of Candidacy with the FEC

In the Advisory Opinion, the Commission concluded that, based upon the requester's statements and because he was not a candidate for federal office in 1984 or 1986, the $20,000 cash gifts he had received for the years 1985 through 1987 appeared to be of a personal nature, rather than made in anticipation of, or related to any campaign for, federal office. Moreover, because the receipt of $20,000 per year from the requester's parents in 1985, 1986, and 1987 indicated a "repetitious custom of monetary gifts," apparently without regard to the requester's possible candidacy for federal office, the Commission concluded that another $20,000 cash gift under similar circumstances during 1988 would be considered personal funds. Thus, the Commission looked at 1 the date the gifts began, the consistency in the amount, and the form of the gifts over a number of 2 3 years

Here, no information has been provided concerning the amount, form, or timing of previous gifts the Respondent's parents may have made to him-information which is essential in determining whether similar gifts had customarily been received prior to candidacy. Further, the fact that Respondent transferred $100,000 to his father shortly after the election appears to undercut his claim that the funds constituted a gift

RMCC alternatively maintained during the audit that the $30,000 at issue was composed of the $19,602 in Morrison's business account and a short-term interest-bearing loan of $10,398 from his father Once again, no information was submitted that would support this claim, and the transfer back of $100,000, with no apparent additional interest, to Morrison's father shortly after the election appears to undercut the claim that his father had, in fact, made such a loan to RMCC Moreover, it appears that all the funds in Respondent's business account prior to the transfer of the $30,000 were necessary to pay other obligations of the business and thus were unavailable to be loaned to RMCC In fact, it appears that without the funds from his parents, Respondent's business account would have been overdrawn when the second $15,000 loan was made to RMCC 2

Therefore, there is reason to believe that Richard R. Morrison IV violated 2 U.S.C. § 441a(f)

Prior to the deposit of funds from the perents, Respondent's business account had a balance of $19,602.
